GERMAN MONARCHIST COUP FORESHADOWED

BRIGHTON TRAGEDY

M.P.'S DAUGHTER DROWNED

OVERCOME BY ROUGH SEA

(Telegraph Special.)

London, Sept. 2.
A heavy bereavement has been suffered by Sir Ernest Graham-Little, the Independent M. P. for the London University, by the death, under tragic circumstances to-day, of his young daughter Helen.

The girl, who was 19 years of age, was bathing in Salt Dean, Brighton, when she was overcome by the rough seas and drowned.

Sir Ernest Graham-Little has at three elections been returned for the London University, of which he is a member of the Court and Senate. He is a noted medical man, being physician in charge of the Skin Department of St. Mary's Hospital, and Consulting Physician to the East London Hospital for Children.

He was married in 1911 to Miss Sarah Helen Kendall, and besides the daughter who has now lost her life, there is one son.—Reuter.

SPEEDBOAT RACE TO-DAY

MISS ENGLAND AND MISS AMERICA

GAR WOOD'S NEW MYSTERY SHIP

London, Sept. 2.

Mr. Kaye Dan, who will pilot Lord Wakefield's motorboat, Miss England III, in the speedboat race which begins to-morrow at Detroit for the British International Trophy, has expressed himself well pleased with his boat.

He does not underestimate the possibilities of Commodore Gar Wood's craft "Miss America X," however, and anticipates a very fast race.

Miss England III holds the world's water speed record, but the International Trophy has been held by America since Gar Wood won it twelve years ago, on Southampton Water.—British Wireless.

COTTON STRIKE MEDIATION

LABOUR MINISTRY INTERESTED

London, Sept. 2.

Although no official attempt at mediation has yet been undertaken in the strike in the Lancashire cotton industry, which began last Monday the prospects of intervention are being actively explored by the Minister of Labour.

The general situation was reviewed to-day by organisations of operatives and of employers which met independently in Manchester. It is stated that the meetings had no reference to plans for mediation.—British Wireless.

JAPANESE FLAGSHIP FOR SHANGHAI

Expected with Admiral on Monday

Shanghai, Sept. 3.

It is announced that the Japanese cruiser, Izumo, the flagship of the Third Fleet, with Admiral Sakonji on board, is due in Shanghai from Hankow on Monday, September 5th.

The Izumo was the flagship of Admiral Nomura during the Sino-Japanese hostilities in Shanghai.—Reuter.

EXCITING FINISH

FOUR RUNS TO WIN; ONE WICKET LEFT

SUSSEX MAKE A FINE EFFORT

London, Sept. 2.

One of the most thrilling finishes of the season relieved the last county championship engagement from the tedium which otherwise might have beset it.

Both sides made a brilliant effort to force a victory, but when the last ball was bowled, Sussex were still three runs behind Somerset with one wicket to fall.

Somerset thus obtained five points for a win on the first innings thanks largely to R. A. Ingle, who has shown his best form this season and compiled another century. He contributed 107 to Somerset's total of 303.

Sussex replied with 256. R. C. Robertson-Glasgow taking 5 wickets for 47 runs. Batting a second time, Somerset were dismissed for 160, Tate taking 5 for 42. Sussex went in requiring 208 to win and finally scored 204 for 9 wickets. Robertson-Glasgow took 5 for 77.

GENTLEMEN LOSE.

The Players beat the Gentlemen by 49 runs, compiling 194 in their second knock.

The Gentlemen's first innings produced 277. B. W. Hone scoring 136 and Freeman taking 5 for 100. They were then dismissed for 240, Freeman taking six for 123.

The M.C.C. match against Yorkshire was a washout. Yorkshire butting first made 326, Mitchell 102. Rain prevented further play after the M.C.C. had obtained 66 for 3 wickets.—Reuter.

WHOLESALE ASSASSINATION AMONG PLANS FOR SUNDAY

Police and special agents throughout Spain are searching for secret stores of arms and explosives following the discovery of plans for a Communist rising which is scheduled to take place on Sunday next.

The plot involved steps for the assassination of the leading Communist leaders and the arrest of

ECUADOR REVOLT BLOODBATH

QUITO STREET FIGHTING

380 KILLED: 730 WOUNDED

Quito, Sept. 2.

Nearly four hundred soldiers and civilians have been slain in three days of the fiercest street fighting following the flare-up of a revolt against the Government.

The military garrison at Quito, the capital of Ecuador, were the prime movers in the revolt, proclaiming that Sr. Neptali Bonifaz was the President of the Republic in defiance of the Congress.

For some time the garrison was in complete control of the capital, and President Moreno took refuge in the American Legation, and in the meantime, troops loyal to Moreno were rushed from other centres in an effort to quell the revolt.

AMNESTY REFUSED.

To-day it is believed that the outbreak has been finally crushed, but not until heavy losses had been suffered on both sides. A truce was declared on August 29 after intensive fighting, but failing assurances of an amnesty by the government, fighting broke out again.

It is estimated that the casualties exceed 380 killed and 730 wounded.

CAUSE OF REVOLT.

Sr. Bonifaz was elected President on October 20, 1931, for a five-year term, following a series of political troubles involving the appointment of provisional Presidents. The Ecuador Congress disqualified Sr. Bonifaz because of his Peruvian parentage. He was to take office on September 1, Thursday last, and the revolt began when it was indicated that he would not be permitted to do so.

Very severe fighting took place in the heart of the capital, the rebels having taken up defensive positions in the main plaza.—Reuter.

A married woman, Ma Yuet-fung, aged 29, of 112, Cheung Sha Wan Road, committed suicide yesterday by taking opium. She had been greatly depressed on account of her husband's prolonged illness.

the failure of the German Himalayan Expedition.

The expedition set out from Munich in April to climb the 27,000-feet Nanga Parbat Peak, but has failed to reach its goal and is now returning owing to sickness among the members.

The news is contained in a telegram from Herr Berchtold, a member of the party, to his mother.

An earlier report stated that three climbers had established a camp at a height of 22,965 feet, from which it was proposed to make an attack on the Peak.—Reuter.

The rising tide of Junkerism in Germany, tending towards the restoration of the Monarchy, is indicated in the above pictures showing left, the ex-Crown Prince arriving to inspect the Pioneer Guard and right, von Mackensen in Hussar uniform inspecting the cavalry of the old army.

VON PAPEN FINDS NEW ALLIES

STEEL HELMET MEETING ENTHUSIASM

'TIME FOR THE SOLDIER'

BERLIN, SEPT. 2.
BELIEF THAT A COUP FOR THE RESTORATION OF THE HOHENZOLLERNS IS IN PROJECT GROWS WITH EVERY IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT IN THE POLITICAL STRUGGLE.

The Monarchists, staunch, united, supremely confident with the Reichswehr behind them and in power for the first time since the war, are believed to be moving towards this end, with or without the approval of Captain von Papen.

The one question which has yet to be answered is whether the plans of the Monarchists provide for the return of the ex-Kaiser, or whether their choice will fall upon the ex-Crown Prince.

To-night, another important move in the game is believed to have been made. The presence of members of the Cabinet of the Reich as well as of Prussia, at a mass meeting of fifteen thousand members of the Steel Helmet organisation at the Sports Palace, is regarded as very clearly indicating that von Papen has come down on the side of the Steel Helmets rather than on that of the Nazi storm-troops.

ROYAL GUESTS AT MASS GATHERING

The ex-Crown Prince and other sons of the ex-Kaiser were given a royal reception and the members of the Cabinet, the Duke of Coburg, the Duke of Mecklenburg, the Duke of Anhalt, and many generals of the Great War headed by Field-Marshal von Mackensen were very warmly welcomed.

CONSCRIPTION DEMANDED.

Colonel Seidte, the leader of the Steel Helmet organisation, with which President Hindenburg has always had some connexion, made a fighting speech in which he urged the abolition of the Versailles Treaty and the Weimar Constitution.

He also demanded the re-introduction of compulsory military service in Germany and declared that the party system had collapsed.

"The time of the soldier has come," he declared, amid a storm of cheering.

CHANCELLOR DISCREET.

The Chancellor, Captain Franz von Papen, interviewed recently regarding the Royalist movement, said discreetly:

"We have not even had time to discuss this question. I have been a loyal monarchist myself since birth. But really, we have

CHINA WARNED BY MANCHUKUO!

YOUNG MARSHAL & IRREGULARS

NORTH CHINA CONTROL

(Special to "Telegraph.")

Shanghai, Sept. 3.

Although many well-informed observers believe that Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's domination in North China will not be affected by recent events, his future still appears to be uncertain.

The Young Marshal is one day reported to be re-establishing his power and is remaining in Peking and the next day, he is reported to be going abroad.

It is now reported that Chiang Kai-shek has addressed another telegram to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, urging him to act as chairman of the Peking Branch of the Military Council.

Chang is stated to be unwilling to accept the offer, but if he does his position will undergo no material change for he will remain the overlord of North China, with only a change of title.—Reuter.

MANCHUKUO WARNINGS.

Tokyo, Sept. 3.

The Manchukuo Foreign Minister has cabled strongly-worded warnings to the Nanking Government and to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, against the latter's alleged activities in supporting the irregulars, thereby creating disturbances in Manchuria.—Reuter.

GERMANY'S NOTE TO FRANCE

BRITAIN RECEIVES THE DOCUMENT

London, Sept. 2.

The British Government has received a copy of the German aide memoire which was handed to the French Government on the subject of the reorganisation of the Reichswehr and insistence on Germany's right to the possession of arms permitted to other nations but denied to Germany under the Versailles Treaty.

The British Government has the document under consideration and is watching the developments with close interest.

Britain is being kept informed of the attitude of both the French and German Governments regarding the matter, in accordance with the terms of the Consultative Pact, but, for the present, she is taking no part in the interchanges between Berlin and Paris.—British Wireless.

WALKER CUP RESULT

STATES WIN FOUR OF SINGLES

CRAWLEY THE SOLE BRITISH WINNER

New York, Sept. 2.

The United States won the Walker Cup to-day by eight matches to one, the remaining three singles being halved. Britain showed slightly better form in the singles than in the foursomes, but there was never any doubt regarding the outcome.

In the eight matches played to-day, America were leading in six at the end of the first eighteen holes.

The results follow:

Oulmet (U.S.A.) and Torrance (Britain) halved.
Sweetser (U.S.A.) and Stout (Britain) halved.
Moreland (U.S.A.) beat Rex Hartley, 2 and 1.
Seaver (U.S.A.) beat Eric Fiddian, 7 and 6.
L. G. Crawley (Britain) beat Voight (U.S.A.), 1 up.
McCarthy (U.S.A.) beat Lister Hartley, 3 and 2.
Westland (U.S.A.) and Burke (Britain), halved.
Dunlap (U.S.A.) beat McIlvaine (Britain), 10 and 9.

Burke's recovery to save his match against Westland was the best performance of the afternoon. He was three down at the end of the morning round and was much the superior golfer in the afternoon.

CRAWLEY'S BATTLE.

Crawley's battle with Voight provided a ding-dong struggle. Crawley's long driving countered Voight's proficiency on the greens and neither player was able to establish a lead for long. At the end of eighteen holes they were all square. Crawley won the match at the 36th when Voight got into trouble.

Oulmet led Torrance by one hole and Sweetser led Stout by two holes at the end of the morning round, but were unable to maintain the advantage in the afternoon.

"STARS" FAIL TO SHINE.

The failure of Fiddian and McIlvaine was startling. Both were looked upon as the most promising of the British team. Fiddian was four down in the morning and never looked like recovery.

McIlvaine had an even more startling collapse. He could do literally nothing right in the morning and was ten holes down at the end of eighteen. He carried Dunlap for nine further holes without allowing him to increase his advantage, but his improvement was not good enough to carry him beyond the 27th green.

CRAWLEY'S BLOW AT THE CUP.

Later, Crawley, who was not selected for the foursomes, was the hero of the match from a British standpoint. He was all square with Voight at the end of the 35th. Voight's second shot hit the trees at the back of the green at the last hole. The American played out beautifully only to miss a three-foot putt for a half. Crawley hit the hole in the par four.

Crawley actually hit the Walker Cup at the eighteenth when he sliced a ball and made a dent on the bowl.

TORRANCE FIGHTS BACK.

Oulmet and Torrance also had a very keen game. Voight obtained the lead for the first time at the 15th hole where he sank a 28-foot putt for a birdie three. He turned one up and then in the afternoon proceeded to establish a lead of three holes, by the twenty-eighth. Torrance drew level at the thirty-third and the last three were halved.

McIlvaine's downfall was brought about more by Dunlap's brilliance than his own weakness. Dunlap

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

I am presenting a hand to-day which was played in the recent All-American tournament by one of America's greatest card players—S. B. Fink, of Cleveland. He is undoubtedly qualified in rank as the champion hard-luck player of the country. While he has won many city and state championship titles, he seems to be doomed to finish no better than second or third in national championship events and he has done that consistently in the past two years. In the following hand he gave a nice example of a strip and end play.

♠K-8-5 ♥9-6-4 ♦A-Q-J-9 ♣K-J-9	♠A-J ♥10-9-2 ♦K-J-7 ♣Q-10-4
♠7-6-4-3 ♥10-8-5-3-2 ♦8-3-2	♠A-Q ♥10-6-5-4-3-2 ♦A-7-6-5

The Bidding.

Mr. Fink was sitting in the North position. His partner in the South, who was dealer, passed. West passed and Mr. Fink bid one diamond. He was playing the one over one and under this system few hands are passed third hand. East overcalled with one spade. Mr. Fink's partner now jumped to five diamonds. West and Mr. Fink passed, and East made a very light double which was destined to be his ruin, as it marked him with the missing high cards.

The Play.

East's opening lead was the ace of spades, and he then shifted to a heart. Mr. Fink took the finesse in dummy and immediately returned dummy's ace of hearts. His next play was a small diamond from dummy, but he refused to take the finesse, as East was practically marked with the king of diamonds by his double.

Mr. Fink now led the nine of hearts, trumping in dummy with the three of diamonds. This stripped his hand and dummy's hand of hearts. His next play was a small club—again he refused to take the finesse, going right up with the king of clubs. He then played the king of spades, discarding a club from dummy. His other spade was ruffed in dummy with the four of diamonds.

Mr. Fink had now stripped the two hands of spades also, so his next play was a small diamond, throwing East in with the king, and now you can see that East was helpless. If he led a spade, Mr. Fink would ruff in one hand and discard a club in the other, while if a club was led, Mr. Fink was bound to make two club tricks.

By taking advantage of his opponent's double, marking him with the high cards, and thereby executing a strip and end play, Mr. Fink made his contract of five diamonds, doubled.

NAZI DEATH SENTENCES COMMUTED

Berlin, Sept. 2. The death penalties imposed on five Nazis for the murder of Communists at Beuthen, Silesia, on August 22, have been commuted to imprisonment for life with hard labour, and a delicate political situation has been overcome.

The German Chancellor, Herr von Papen, decided that at the time of the murder the five men were un-

LOCAL AMBULANCE BRIGADE.

EXTRACT FROM REPORT
BY HEADQUARTERS

The Grand Priory of the Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, in the British Realm, of which H. M. the King is the Sovereign Head, and the Duke of Connaught the Grand Prior, recently issued its annual report, and the following extracts are taken from the report of the Chapter-General for the year ended December 31, 1931, in so far as it relates to Hongkong:

Many instances of the value of the services of the Hongkong District of the Brigade Overseas to the Colony have been recorded from time to time, and in 1931 these have been even more evident. In April, there occurred the disaster on the Kowloon-Canton Railway, when members of the Brigade rendered meritorious first-aid assistance to the victims of an accident caused through the derailing of a train by reason of floods. Outstanding services were performed in another direction when members of the Brigade at much risk to themselves performed duty at posts throughout the Colony during the Anti-Japanese Riots which broke out in September. Excellent work was also done in connexion with a fire which occurred in the crowded Chinese quarter, so that the members have every reason to be proud of the record of work performed during the year. The attention of Chapter-General has been drawn to these cases of outstanding public duty.

Aid to Shanghai.

Although outside the scope of this report, I should like to refer to the prompt response of the members of this District to the need for ambulance workers at Shanghai during the recent hostilities. No details have yet come to hand of the work actually performed, but I have no doubt that the party sent from Hongkong to Shanghai fully maintained the traditions of the District and the Brigade Overseas.

I am very glad to be able to report the kind interest taken in the work by their Excellencies the Governor and Lady Peel. Lady Peel has kindly consented to accept a rank in the Brigade, and has been appointed Lady District Superintendent. The interest shown by the Chinese themselves in the work of the Brigade is a characteristic feature of the work in Hongkong.

During the year the Brigade in Hongkong has purchased and equipped another motor ambulance for work in the Colony.

Honours.

The following are promotions, admissions, and attachments:

Knight of Grace—Sir William Peel, K. B. E., C. M. G.
Officers (Sisters)—Lady Peel.
Serving Brothers—William Brownlow Ashe Moore, L. R. C. P. & S. I.

aware of the presidential decree, issued only 90 minutes earlier, imposing very severe penalties for political terrorism.

The Prussian Government, which presided over the appeal, decided to permit the case to be reheard by the ordinary court.—Reuter.

(When the death sentences were imposed, a delicate situation faced the Government, in view of Herr Hitler's threat that he would support the Nazis, and threatened open war unless the sentences were commuted.)

ISN'T THE LOVELY?

Skin like a peach, lips naturally red, eyes bright and clear, and a smile that tells you that she is full of good spirits. She might not confide the secret, but every woman and girl should know that internal cleanliness is the only way to genuine beauty. And for that purpose there is nothing better than Pinkettes, the favourite laxative.

Pinkettes gently banish those accumulations of waste matter that are a menace to skin beauty, the stagnation in the liver that dulls the eye, and the stomach derangement that causes a sallow complexion and unhappy facial expression. If you value good looks take Pinkettes occasionally. And you'll not only look better but you'll feel brighter for this little attention to your internal needs. All chemists can supply you.

RENT CLAIM FAILS.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PLEADED IN LOCAL CASE

At the Supreme Court in summary jurisdiction yesterday afternoon, Mr. Justice Wood continued the hearing of the claim of arrears of rent for 15 months, amounting to $750, brought by Le Beau & Co., of Entertainment Building, against Chan Wah trading as "The Pictorial," of 10 D'Aguiar Street, under a lease in writing for three years.

Mr. M. A. da Silva appeared for the plaintiffs, whilst Mr. Peter Sin was for the defendant. The defence raised was that there was no agreement between the parties, and even if there were, there was no memorandum in writing to satisfy Section 4 of the Statute of Frauds. The defendant claimed the benefit of this statute. At the resumed hearing, Mr. da Silva made a submission that, having regard to the evidence, the plaintiffs were entitled to judgment for the amount claimed, with costs. He also raised the point that the defendants were only limited to the two issues agreed upon, but his Lordship held that the plea of the statute was a subsidiary one.

Without calling upon Mr. Sin to reply, the Puisne Judge said that he believed the story of the defence, and gave judgment for the defendant, with costs.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE
by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

MEAN HERE TO-DAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan, leaves home and taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her.

They are married and for the first time
Cherry finds what it means to lack money.
Her struggles with housework are discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome Max Pearson who also works on the News.

Cherry receives a letter from her mother enclosing a cheque for $500. She returns the cheque because pride will not let her keep
it. Dan, worried about bills, undertakes to write a short story but becomes discouraged and leaves it unfinished.

Two days later Cherry learns her mother is critically ill. Cherry goes home and at her mother's bedside the father and daughter are reconciled. Mrs. Dixon passes the crisis of her illness and after several days Cherry returns to the apartment. Her father tells her the doctor has ordered Mrs. Dixon to spend several months at the seashore. He asks Cherry to accompany her mother.
Cherry refuses and Dixon decides to go himself. The night before they are to depart
he calls on Cherry and Dan.

CHAPTER XXX.

Dixon looked ill at ease. "Good evening," he said. "I didn't ring
because I couldn't find a bell downstairs and the door was open. I hope you don't mind."

"Of course not," Cherry told him.
"only you did surprise me! Come in, won't you?"

He entered the room. There was a moment's awkward pause and then Dan stepped forward. "How do you do, Mr. Dixon," he said.

"How do you do?"

The constraint between the two men was evident. Cherry hastened to relieve it. "Here's a chair, Father," she said, directing him to the most comfortable one. It stood near the open window and what breeze there was reached it. "It's been a hot day, hasn't it?" she went on. "Lucky you and Mother are getting off so soon."

"That's just what I've come to talk about," Dixon announced.

"But you're going, aren't you?
You don't mean anything's happened to change your plans?"

Her father shook his head. "No, nothing's happened. But I came to ask once again if you wouldn't reconsider and come with us."

Cherry drew herself up straight
in her chair. "I can't," she said.
"I'm sorry but—I can't."

Dan was sitting in the shadows
at the opposite side of the room.
Now he leaned forward. "You didn't tell me anything about this,
Cherry," he said. "I didn't know
you were thinking of going anywhere."

The girls cheeks flamed. "I—I suppose I forgot to mention it," she said. "Father asked me to go with Mother on this trip but I told him
it would be impossible. And now that he's decided to go himself I'm sure that will be much better." She turned toward Dixon. "You know you really do need the rest, Father."

"You're sure you won't change your mind?"

Cherry smiled. "Quite sure," she said. "What do you think of our home here? Isn't it rather attractive?"

The one room apartment was not at its best. The living room was warm and there were still signs that it had recently served as a dining room. Dan's hat and coat and a pile of newspapers cluttered
the davenport. A faint odor suggested that the neighbours had been cooking cabbage.

Dixon managed a reply that was satisfactory and Cherry explained
how they had found the apartment and subleased it.

There was a little more talk and then Dixon arose to go. For a moment, he hesitated, then said abruptly to Dan, "I'm afraid I was rather hasty the last time we met.
Said things I shouldn't have."

"That's all right, Mr. Dixon. I guess I understand how you felt."

The older man put out his hand.
"I was wrong," he said slowly,
"but I hope it's not too late to make up for it. You and Cherry must both come out to see us when we're back from this trip."

"Thanks. We'll be glad to."

A few moments more and Dixon was gone. Cherry whirled around as the door closed after him.

"You see, Dan!" she exclaimed happily. "Father isn't a bit like you thought he was. Oh, I'm so glad he came even if the place is a sight. Aren't you glad, too?"

"Why—yes, I guess so."

"You guess so? Don't you know?"

"Yes, of course. Sure, I'm glad.
But why didn't you tell me about this trip, Cherry?"

"I did tell you about it."

"I mean about your father asking you to go with them? How'd it happen you didn't say anything about that?"

"Oh, I guess it just didn't seem very important. I said I couldn't and that seemed to be all there was to it."

Dan crossed the room and looked out on the night. For several moments he was silent. Then he said,
"It isn't too late to change your mind about it, is it?"

"Why, Dan—"

His back was still toward her.
His voice went on, calmly and steadily. "I think you're making a mistake, Cherry. I think it would be a mistake to go with them."

"You mean you want me to go?"

"Yes. Yes, I do."

Cherry was beside him. "You want me to go?" she repeated in amazement. "Why, Dan, what's come over you? I don't understand—"

He turned and faced her.
"There's nothing to understand,"
he said. "Why should you spend the rest of the summer in a hot,
dumpy little place like this when you could be at the seashore? Why should you be cooking and washing dishes when you could be living in an expensive hotel with everything in the world to make you comfortable? I know I can't give you the sort of things you've been accustomed to but that's no reason you have to give them up. You can call up your father in the morning and tell him you've changed your mind."

The flush was gone from Cherry's cheeks. "I told Father I couldn't go because I didn't want to," she said quietly. "I don't want to go now."

"You—really mean that?"

"Of course I mean it."

Dan dropped to the window seat.
He leaned forward, resting both arms on his knees. "Cherry," he said. "I've been a sap! I thought I was going to get half a dozen raises and sell a lot of stories in no time. I thought we'd be moving into a better apartment, buy a car
—oh, I had all sorts of plans! It's decent of you to be a sport about all this but we might well face
it. I'm a dub and that's all I'll ever be!"

"But that's not true, Dan! Please don't let yourself be discouraged.
There's lots of time ahead. You haven't any reason to feel this way."

"Haven't I? Look!"

He went to the davenport, picked up his coat and drew an envelope from a pocket. Without another word he handed the envelope to Cherry.

She drew out the bulky, folded pages. As she did so a small, rectangular bit of paper fell into her
lap. She picked it up and read:

"We are sorry that we are unable to make use of the enclosed manuscript. Thank you for submitting it."

The name printed on the slip
was that of a famous magazine.
Cherry unfolded the pages. It was Dan's story about Gus, the taxicab driver, the story he had started on the rainy Sunday so long ago.

"I finished it," he told her, "while your mother was sick and you were staying with her. I didn't mean to say anything about it unless they took it. Wanted to surprise you! I had another one ready to send if they took this. Well, that can go into the wastebasket!"

He reached for the manuscript
but Cherry drew back. "Please!"
she begged. "Let me keep it, Dan.
I want to read it. Oh, I'm sorry that old editor didn't like it but you mustn't be discouraged! Maybe the next one will be different."

But Dan was not to be shaken from his gloomy mood. Later when Cherry had finished reading the manuscript and was glowingly enthusiastic about it he was only half convinced. He got the second story, an account of two urchins called before juvenile court, from the desk
drawer and she read that.

"They're good!" Cherry insisted fervently. "I don't care what that editor or anyone else thinks. These stories are interesting!"

Dan laughed at her enthusiasm,
was pleased more than he would admit.

"I like the name of this second
one, too," she told him. "Kemp's Crime." How did you happen to think of that?" He had called the other story simply, "Night Life."

"Oh, I don't know. Saw some kids in court one day. About half of it's true and the rest I imagined
to suit myself."

"Listen, Dan," Cherry said seriously, "no matter what anyone else thinks, I know you're going to write great stories some day!"

"And in the meantime we'll go to the poor house."

"We certainly will not! Don't you understand, dear, that I'd rather be here with you living just as we are than in the finest hotel in the world with all the money there is if you weren't there?"

He told her she was a very foolish girl and neither of them believed it.

The house at Briarcliff had been closed for an indefinite period.
The cook and her husband were
the only ones to remain there.
Martha and Sarah were both to visit relatives, departing as soon as Mr. and Mrs. Dixon had gone. Martin, the chauffeur, was to take the car to the eastern resort and remain there.

Cherry rode with her parents to the station. They were making the trip by rail because Mrs. Dixon considered it more comfortable. Miss Evans, the nurse, looking almost like a stranger in her chic blue dress and hat, sat with Cherry and

The train was to leave at 10 o'clock but already the day was warm. Mrs. Dixon, dressed in thin gray silk, appeared pale and delicate as she leaned back against the seat. Her hand, in its gray glove, clung to Cherry's.

"It doesn't seem right to leave you," she was saying. "I know I'm going to be worried—"

"But that's nonsense! Miss Evans, you mustn't let her do anything of the sort. There's nothing to worry about. You're to have a lovely time sunning yourself and looking at the ocean and taking long drives. You must write and tell me all about it and I'll write you everything that happens here. That is, if anything does happen. I don't suppose there'll be much to tell."

The limousine answered into the circular drive that led to the entrance of the station. Another minute and the car had halted. Martin had the door open and was helping them out.

"Plenty of time," Walter Dixon assured them. "We've another 10 minutes yet." There was always plenty of time wherever Walter Dixon was concerned. Punctuality was a part of his creed.

They found seats in the waiting room. Mr. Dixon disappeared, then returned with newspapers and magazines. In what seemed an incredibly short time the train was pulling into the station. Cherry's arms were around her mother.

Kisses, farewells, renewed promises. All about them others were saying goodbye, calling greetings.
Cherry could not go beyond the train gate. She waved until her parents and the nurse had disappeared into the car. Then she turned, her eyes a mist of tears.

For the first time she realized that she had cut herself completely and finally from the past. What was ahead?

By Jean Patou.

Paris.—The need for comfort at the seaside has always expressed itself in a very individual manner in the course of past seasons, and more especially so since the time when a totally new departure was made in the beach mode which came in the guise of pyjamas.

It is almost inevitable that with a garment like the pyjama, fantasies bordering on the eccentric should be engendered. This might falsely imply that it is in itself an eccentricity, whereas accustomed to it as we now are, it can be as sober and in good taste as a beach dress.

Avoiding Irregular Tan.

The whole gamut of fantasy, as a matter of fact, attached to pyjamas extended even to beach dresses.

Some models, extravagantly décolleté, are much more akin to a dress. Aside from the complete lack of elegance of dresses fashioned on this theme, another point in their disfavour is their total lack of practical qualities. Everyone knows that with these exaggerated sun-backs, as they are called, where one is forced to resort to a complicated system of T or other strap devices, a woman acquires an irregular tan which is annoying and unsightly when afterward she is called upon to wear evening clothes.

I think that these exaggerated décolletés should be confined to pyjamas and then only to the extent of insuring greater ease of movement and on condition that the pyjama be completed by some sort of garment to avoid just such unsightly sunburn.

Well-groomed Via Wool.

To retain its simplicity, the pyjama must be just wide enough for comfort and, so far as the practical side is concerned, it must be fashioned of a relatively light fabric, either wool or linen, but in any case perfectly shadowproof. Wool has the advantage over cotton of not creasing and thereby always retaining a well-groomed air.

The trousers can be pulled over a swimming suit or completed by a sleeveless blouse, plus a sleeveless vest, but both protect the arms when necessary. Another alternative is the one-piece pyjama, also completed by a jacket or bolero.

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton.

"The baby won't take his orange juice. He hasn't had it for three days. What am I to do?" The baby's mother held up the bottle with its proper dilution of yellow fluid and looked the picture of discouragement.

"He has to have it," she declared. "The doctor insists."

"Of course," I assented. "What else does he get at this feeding?"

"He doesn't get anything else just now except his cod-liver oil. The last week has been so dark and rainy he couldn't get his sun bath, so the doctor said on those days to go back to the oil. He won't take that either, now, unless I half strangle him. He is so big now he can fight like everything. Over ten months, you know."

I had seen that baby's presents when he was born and I knew there was a silver mug among them.

Planning a Remedy.

"Where's his mug?"

"It's put away. I suppose it's all tarnished now. Anyway he can't use it."

Oh couldn't he!

"Please get it, shine it up well, will you, and get the polish all off. Then wash it with hot water and soap and scald it. And let me try him."

After a few minutes the mug was produced. I had asked for it rather than a cup or glass because that little fellow has four large front teeth that can hold on like a bull pup's. He could take a chunk out of a broom handle. No use risking a piece of glass or porcelain in his small insides.

I poured the orange dilution into the mug and by tilting it quickly and dexterously at intervals managed to get the juice into his mouth without letting him get a hold on the mug with his teeth. He choked a bit once or twice, but to his mother's surprise laughed and stuck up his little face for more.

He took the whole business.

"Don't give him his oil now," I suggested. Wait a bit. He detests his orange juice by association of ideas. He knows the oil is coming. This mug will share the same fate as did the juice in a bottle in a day or so if you don't look out. Keep the orange in the cup absolutely away from his thoughts about the oil."

Down Went the Oil!

Then something very queer happened to my intense delight.

A half hour later his mother gave him the oil as I had suggested, in a medicine dropper instead of a teaspoon. He didn't cry or fight, or spit it out. One would have thought he was having ambrosia.

"I can only say it's worked doubly," I exclaimed happily. "Two things together often set up a mental wall. Separate them and the wall breaks down. I am glad the mug and the dropper worked because the next thing probably would have been a phobia against his bottle of milk and even his cereal and vegetables."

Of such strange things are appetites made.

All mothers cannot have silver mugs, let me add, but nice little enamelled cups sold for babies are inexpensive and pretty. After nine months a baby can start to use one. It is well to begin to teach him anyway.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN.

Above:

These two Patou bathing suits show the correct wear for the beach.

Left is a suit composed of navy trunks and a sweater top striped red on white.

The back offers a new décolleté. Right is a navy blue and white one-piece.

Both are in wool jersey.

At Left:

Beach pyjamas as offered by Jean Patou are sober and very tailored looking.

Left is a straw and Havana brown combination in fine wool jersey and right shows a red and white effect in toile de soie.

Both have little bolero jackets with sleeves in the darker colour to protect the wearer from the sun's rays.

HOPELESS
CONTRADICTION

The Imports Duties Advisory Committee has fallen into the cardinal error of all economic nationalists by endeavouring to work on two planes at the same time. The excuse for the latest tariff increases—to encourage mass production in certain British industries—might be acceptable were the Committee able to point to some outlet for the mass-produced goods which they suggest will be exported. To-day their proposals can only have the effect of further complicating the task of those striving towards business revival in the world at large. There is a glut of almost every commodity on the world's markets. The May Committee suggests steps for adding to the heaping up of unwanted goods.

Mass production, to be effective, must be based on international markets. Machinery has been improved far beyond what would have been deemed possible a few years ago. This mechanical development has been accompanied by a corresponding reorganisation of methods. Efficient plant and a new conception of industry have brought production to a remarkable pitch. The output is such that it is necessary to extend the scale of distribution. Ever since the days of the Phoenicians some countries have depended on foreign markets to a degree that would have been unthinkable a generation ago. There has come to the aid of mass production an unprecedented facility of transport. The problem would be simple were there a beautiful equilibrium of manufacturing and agricultural countries—if one set of countries could send out their mass-produced goods and another set of countries could receive them. Unfortunately, however, there is no such balance. Although all countries are not on the same level, all countries are, in varying degree, have availed themselves of the new system of mass production. Thus while all countries have need of foreign markets, all countries likewise seek to close their own markets against the foreigner. Against the overwhelmingly powerful necessity of international trade, there is pitted the desperate resistance of national trade. Each country is internationalist in selling and nationalist in buying. Hence there is a hopeless contradiction. We would have all markets open to us, and we would open our own markets to none. The new methods of production are thwarted by the old methods of distribution. The one requires a recognition of interdependence; the other stands pat on national notions of independence.

It is surely clear that traditional economic theories are inconsistent with this industrial revolution. Intensified national competition, with its paraphernalia of regulation and restrictions, can only stultify the development of technical invention. The tariff defences that various countries are putting up against each other in a mad race to build the highest strike actually at the countries which put up these defences. For they are trying to live in watertight compartments when the very condition of their existence is to extend the range of their activities. This way lies the complete breakdown of the world economic system.

Family Changes.

Whether in the West or the East, nothing is more the subject of lamentation at the present day than the supposed decadence of family life. We are told by the older generation that the beautiful family life of former days has gone. The family hearth, like the family altar, is no more. The bond has been snapped, and the home has taken on the character of a boarding-house. The good old spirit of solidarity, of companionship, and common interests, has gone out of it. Some months ago, Sir William Beveridge and other sociologists sought for light on the subject by the help of the B.B.C., and now the first fruits of investigation have been published. A thorough scientific examination and classification of the thousands of answers given by British families of all classes has yet to be made. But first impressions of the information supplied would seem to indicate that there has been little or none of that fundamental change which is so much bewailed. The country is still filled with normal people, who live happy family lives. There have not been any very great changes in family life in the last generation, say the investigators, but what changes there are are on the whole an improvement. The real changes are less than the apparent or formal changes. There has been a loosening of family ties and authority, and a strengthening of real ties. "A lot of sham family loyalty has been lost," one father is quoted, "but I do not find any lack of readiness to co-operate in a happy family life." The kernel of the whole question may lie in these words. In the former generation there may have been more show of authority, more compulsion, but was there more family affection than now? That is the true test. The "heavy father" is dead. His place may have been taken by one who does not consciously try to enforce respect, but is more human, more companionable, and in the main every-what as good a parent.

Always happy at teething time

BABY is always happy at teething time if crisp "Ovaltine" Rusks are given to him to bite upon when the first little teeth are making their appearance. With the assistance of these delicious rusks the tiny teeth come easily and quickly through the gums. Strong, healthy teeth with good formation are promoted. Baby delights in the crispness of "Ovaltine" Rusks. As he grows older they should continue to form part of the daily dietary. Efficient mastication is encouraged and this has a vital bearing upon health.

In the manufacture of "Ovaltine" Rusks the finest wheaten flour is used—unbleached, unadulterated and guaranteed absolutely pure. The addition of a proportion of "Ovaltine"—the supreme tonic food beverage—adds to their nutritive value, gives them a fascinating flavour and renders them easy of digestion.

Adults, too, prefer them to bread, toast or biscuits. They are particularly delightful when eaten with cheese at lunch, supper or any light meal.

CURRENT COMMENT

Motor Cycle Trial.

The forthcoming motor cycle reliability trial will undoubtedly attract a large number of competitors, these events having proved so popular in the past. We understand that the rules will be similar to those of other years, and that speed-judging will be one of the tests. Kowloon and the New Territories have been selected this year, and it is anticipated that the Committee will manage to select a route which will call for both judgment of riders and reliability of machines.

More Roads.

Considerable road development in the neighbourhood of Stanley is nearing completion, and will ultimately bring an excellent little bathing beach at Tweedie Bay within easy reach by Motor vehicle. Some few years ago, this particular beach was discovered by the Automobile Association, and at that time a scheme was formulated whereby the K.K.A.A. would build a bathing pavilion for the benefit of its members. Unfortunately, the plans did not fructify, but in the meantime, a few motorists who may be said to have exercised "intelligent anticipation," have secured sites and built bathing huts. Practically the whole of the available space has been taken up, and those who have had the foresight to secure sites, will welcome the completion of the new road.

Fools There Were.

While the majority of people can take a joke, there are occasional instances when the perpetrators' sense of humour only manages to arouse indignation and disgust. Such a case has recently been brought to our notice, and concerns wilful and wanton damage to an Austin "Seven." During the heavy rains last week-end, an Austin was parked for the night in its customary place at the back of the Peak Mansions, and on the following morning, discovered with the bonnet removed, the radiator and petrol tank caps also removed, with the result that the engine had been exposed to the elements during the night. That it was not a case of petty thieving was indicated by the fact that the various parts removed were all nearby, and there seems little doubt that some misguided individuals considered the vehicle a suitable object for a clever prank. Their senselessness is too potent to comment upon, and the only satisfaction they can derive is that damage was done to the magneto and other parts to the extent of approximately $100. The only possible ground for excuse is that the act occurred during a moment of irresponsible exuberance, in which case, it is to be expected that suitable amends will be made now that the unpleasant facts are related.

SPEED AND SAFETY.

The Re-Action Time.

The problem of safety on the highways is not a question of how fast you are going but how quickly you can stop. A motor-car going at 40 miles an hour travels 58.6 feet a second, and as the reaction time of the average person is one second, it means that the average person driving at 40 miles an hour will have travelled 58.6 feet nearer the danger before his brakes operate or he can turn the wheel or do whatever is necessary.

If a danger appears suddenly in less than the distance the car will travel before the driver can re-act, he hits it. He can't help doing so. Fortunately, most drivers get used to their reaction time and the possible consequences with slow

AT THE POINT OF BALANCE!

We are indebted to a reader for the above pictures recently taken on the Shatin Road. How the lorry came to grief is a mystery, but as will be observed, the occupants can thank themselves for a miraculous escape, the vehicle coming to rest on the very brink of a sheer drop over the hillside.

R.A.F. TRAINING MACHINE.

Experiments Determine Most Economic Type.

The announcement appearing in this issue informing the general public that the Royal Air Force have adopted the Avro 621 (Tutor) as their Standard Training Aeroplane is of particular interest, writes the North China Daily News.

The training of pilots is considered one of the most important parts of the work carried out by the Royal Air Force, the reason for this being that no matter how good the fighting machines of an Air Force may be, the Air Force will be inefficient if the training of the pilots is not of the very highest standard.

Immediately after the Great War, the Royal Air Force had an enormous supply of the famous Avro 504 training machine. As fighting machines developed, this type was not considered entirely satisfactory which was in favour of the more powerful training machine.

Efficient Training Machines.

Here it is interesting to note that for nearly twenty years Messrs. A. V. Roe & Co. have specialised in the development of efficient and reliable training machines, and they are to be congratulated on securing the favourable decision of the Air Ministry for their new Type 621.

decision. The Avro 621 is of all metal construction and it has been developed from the original 504N. All the weak points of the 504N have been eliminated and the present type 621 is a vastly superior machine to those on which British War Pilots learned to fly. It embodies all the latest improvements of construction and every consideration has been given to the comfort of both pupil and instructor. The horse power is sufficient to give it a reasonably high performance, with the result that the pupil experiences the sensation of flying a comparatively fast machine and so has no difficulty in stepping from his training machine into his fighting aircraft. It was found that pupils trained on light aeroplanes had not sufficient experience of high power and speed, or the sensation of flying a comparatively large machine, to enable them to fly with complete confidence their fighting machine, as a result, an intermediate type was found to be necessary, and the training on two types proved a lengthy business and actually cost more than the direct training on Type 621.

The policy of the Royal Air Force does not exclude the light aeroplane from the field of training pilots, as there are many countries which cannot afford to employ a large number of high power or training machines. These countries will still be able to give the majority of their training on light aeroplanes, such as the Avro Avian, and then pass their pupils through a short course on Type 621 for the purpose of fitting them for flying the modern fighting machine.

MOTORING IN 1933.

New Devices.

GEAR CHANGING TO BE AUTOMATIC.

The motor-car is about to undergo a revolutionary change, more important than any since the introduction of the self-starter, says the Daily Telegraph on Aug. 3.

As ten years ago that invention eliminated from the motoring vocabulary the hated term "crank-ing-up," so now we are about to be shown how to forget a phrase and abolish an act that has dominated and distressed a whole generation of owner-drivers—"double de-clutching."

Easy gear-changing, gear-changing without skill or effort, almost without thought, certainly without the grinding of teeth, human and mechanical, that has made thousands of men and women shun motoring—this is the dominant factor of the cars of next season.

There are four different methods of providing it. One or other has been adopted by nearly all the makers who have so far announced their "1933 models," and I have reason to believe is being adopted by a considerable proportion of the rest. And it is not merely a new way of attracting the luxury motorist.

Latest Rolls-Royce.

The latest Rolls-Royce has an "easy-change" gear-box but cars in the popular classes, as well as Rolls-Royce and Daimler cars, indeed, in every class, are to have some means of making motor-driving simpler and easier for all.

At the same time driving will be safer, for the business of gear-changing will no longer be there to divert attention at critical moments.

Most cars of 1933 will have one or other of the following forms of improved control:

Easy-change or synchromesh gear-box, which enables the lever to be pushed from notch to notch silently, with just a momentary pause in "neutral."

"Self-changing" or pre-selective gear-box, in which a small arm on the steering column replaces the ordinary long lever. Introduced on Armstrong-Siddeley cars three years ago, this is now used by two other makers.

Free-wheel, which in addition to the advantages its name connotes, allows easy gear-changing while coasting.

Automatic clutch, a mechanism which withdraws the clutch as soon as the accelerator pedal is released, and allows changes of gear to be made as when free-wheeling.

Of these the synchromesh gear-box and the automatic clutch are due in principle to American inventors. The free-wheel for motor-cars was a French idea. The pre-selective gear-box, which is the only one at present that gets rid of the old-fashioned gear-lever, is English.

When M. Levasor devised the sliding-teeth gear-box he said of it, "C'est brutale, mais ça marche." It has "worked" for thirty odd years, but we shall not be slaves to it much longer.

MOTOR TAXATION.

Ten years ago the yield from motor taxation in England was approximately £11,000,000. It has now reached the figure of about £60,000,000. Thus, in ten years it has increased by £49,000,000, which represents an annual increase of nearly £5,000,000.

Assuming that such a rate of increase could be maintained for another decade, in 1942 motor road transport in England would

WORLD'S MOTOR INDUSTRY.

Huge Decrease in Production.

Interesting facts are contained in a report drawn up by a committee of experts on the world production of and trade in motor vehicles. The report has been presented to the Economic Committee of the League and raises a series of problems which will be gone into more thoroughly by the Permanent International Bureau of Motor Manufacturers, of which all the experts are members.

The motor-car industry is undergoing a serious depression. The world production of cars and lorries decreased from six million vehicles in 1929 to four million in 1930—a drop of 34.6 per cent. During that period, production fell off by 37.6 per cent. in the United States and Canada, 10 per cent. in France, 26.8 per cent. in Germany, and 20 per cent. in Italy.

In 1931, world production again fell by 25 per cent., as compared with 1930. Production in the United States and Canada was reduced by a further 80 per cent. This new decrease in production, as compared with 1930, amounted to 21.3 per cent. in France, 19 per cent. in Germany and 37.5 per cent. in Italy.

There was a slight falling-off in the United Kingdom in 1930 (1 per cent.) but in 1931 the decrease was 4.3 per cent.; even so, these figures give evidence of a strong resistance on the part of this industry to the crisis.

U. S. Exports.
According to statistics supplied by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, motor exports from the United States of America fell by 44 per cent. in 1931 compared with the previous year.

This decrease is general, the only exception being Germany, where, in 1929-1930, the exports which represented about 6 per cent. of the production of the country, rose to 14.7 per cent. in 1931; the increase in value, however, is much smaller than the increase in number owing to the fall in prices and the increase in the sale of small cars, by nearly 50 per cent. as compared with 1930.

According to American statistics, there were 36,700,000 motor vehicles in circulation throughout the world in 1931, but, during that year, nearly 50 per cent. of the countries experienced a falling-off in traffic which was most pronounced in the United States of America (568,800 cars), the Argentine (42,000 cars), and Canada (26,800 cars).

It is estimated everywhere that the decrease in production and sales in 1932 will probably reach a figure of about 40 per cent., except in the United Kingdom, where, on the contrary, the market appears to have shown a certain liveliness in the first few months of this year.

Causes Of Slump.
The slump in the motor business is attributed to almost identical causes in the various countries: the financial effects of the economic crisis, resulting in a decrease of purchasing power and a failure to balance national budgets.

The drop in purchasing power is reflected in the increase of the sale of second-hand cars in the number of low-powered cars. The market for industrial vehicles has, however, been well maintained.

It is reported also that, in nearly all countries, additional taxation is imposed on users of cars, and the situation is becoming more serious as a result of the campaign by the railways against the competition of motor transport. The experts are unanimously of opinion that the problems of taxation and customs protection are of primary importance from the point of view of remedying the situation and restoring a certain amount of prosperity to the motor industry. Nations could very usefully help to solve the difficulties by inviting the Permanent International Bureau to make a thorough technical study of the situation. They express their intention of keeping the Economic

TRACING BODY NOISES.

Useful Hints.

Body noises often are due to minor things that can be corrected if checked up systematically. One of the most important points to bear in mind is the effect of weather and temperature on the car. A good sunning after a period of dampness is a decided advantage; a good washing after a period of dry weather is equally effective in banishing squeaks.

In fact, cases have been known where water poured on the flooring of the car, after removal of the mats and cushions, has checked persistent noises. Front body posts are a fruitful source of noises and sometimes can be checked by tightening the wind-shield. If the rear quarter windows are lowered a little they may rattle annoyingly.

Many other rattles are due to the lowered windows hitting the inside of the doors. Drumming noises in the car usually occur at certain speeds which should be avoided as much as possible. Almost all the loud body squeaks originate in the doors, which may need new rubber stops.

GERMAN TRACK WORLD'S LARGEST.

The largest race track in the world, rivalling the Indianapolis Speedway in the United States, has been completed in the Eifel section of Germany. A general view of the Nurburgring track, shown above, illustrates some of the 170 curves contained in the eight miles of track. Surface of the track is composed of a macadam combination.

PROJECTED ROUTE BETWEEN ENGLAND AND INDIA.

Great Possibilities.

A.A.'S INTERNATIONAL HIGHWAY ACROSS EUROPE.

The Automobile Association's proposal for an international highway across Europe, from London to the Bosphorus, was made at the Annual General Assembly of the Alliance Internationale de Tourisme, held at Istanbul in June, 1930.

It advocated a recognised road link across the eight States concerned, avoiding difficult country where possible and serving as an artery, creating traffic flow on a hundred branch routes, thus linking up important centres. The scheme was received with acclamation and adopted forthwith.

There was no question of creating an "autostrade," placing an impossible strain upon the financial resources of the participating governments. Construction work should be limited to providing a satisfactory uniform width, elimination of dangerous corners and making a comparatively dust-free surface upon a permanent type of foundation.

These essentials and the erection of uniform signs in Roman characters were felt to be reasonable demands, possible of attainment.

Early Progress.

Considerable progress with the preliminary details had been made by the time the delegates met again in January, 1931, at Vienna, where a definite itinerary for the Western Section was adopted:—London, Rochester, Canterbury, Dover, Calais, Ostend, Brussels, Aix-la-Chapelle, Cologne, Nurnberg, Regensburg, Passau, Linz, Vienna, Gyor, Budapest.

This route is the line followed by trans-European express trains from Ostend and embraces the Rhine and Danube valleys. It is the economic route par excellence with the shortest sea crossing upon which special motor car ferries are already up the Southern Railway and Messers. Townsend Ferries, Ltd.

From Budapest, the road is being taken via Szeged, Novi-Sad, Belgrade, Nish, Sofia and Adrianople to Istanbul, whilst judging from official support promised by Rumania, it may be confidently anticipated that another branch will leave Hungarian territory near Szeged and run via Bucharest to the great Black Sea port of Constanta.

A Definite Itinerary.

Final agreement upon a definite itinerary has resulted in a total distance of 1,937 miles, this being divided between the eight countries concerned as follows:—

	Miles.
England (Sea Crossing Straits of Dover)	22
France	33
Belgium	191
Germany	444
Austria	203
Hungary	244
Yugoslavia	343
Bulgaria	225
Turkey	159
Total	1,937

Alternative link via Bucharest to Constantinople, 1,977 miles, is also suggested.

don to the Black Sea 1,802 miles, or including the sea passage thence to Istanbul—1,997 miles.

In view of the present financial crisis, and its inevitable reaction upon highway commitments, the International Touring Alliance is now concentrating upon administrative concessions—a most important factor to the achievement of success. It is, for example, essential that a 24-hour customs service shall be available at all frontiers on the road, whilst vexatious national restrictions to free circulation must disappear.

In the former task, much has been accomplished already, and an instance of excellent progress in the latter sphere is the opening by Turkey of her military zones, which, forbidden heretofore to foreign motor traffic, had rendered entrainment necessary for the last 70 miles between Corfu and Istanbul.

Budgetary Difficulties.

Despite budgetary difficulties, practical improvements have by no means stagnated and, in Western European States, comparatively little remains to be done.

Throughout Hungary, too, the highway is consistently excellent and further eastward surveys have been carried out. Bridge building across the River Save between Zemun and Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, is being steadily pushed forward, whilst Bulgaria has put in hand reconstruction on the whole section, west of Sofia, including the Dragoman Pass, where a shelf road, raised above the river bed, reinforced with concrete parapets, is now almost finished.

Based upon A.A. recommendations, a comprehensive itinerary, in map form, incorporating several novel features, is being prepared at the A.I.T.'s central office from data contributed by experts in the eight countries concerned.

This route guide, to be issued in five sections, of which two are ready, will include town plans showing thoroughways and by-passes and, with its aid, even night driving should become a comparatively easy proposition.

With such marked success, in so short a time, the Automobile Association has been encouraged to adopt yet wider views and at this year's general assembly of the A.I.T., held in Copenhagen a suggestion was tabled for developing road connexion with India, through Asia Minor, Syria, Iraq and Persia. Considering Calcutta as a terminal point, the distance from London aggregates 7,618 miles or 5,681 miles beyond Istanbul.

Much To Be Done.

Even under present conditions, despite lack of facilities, the journey is frequently undertaken, without special preparations. Civil servants proceeding home on leave are looking more and more to the road and no surprise was occasioned at the A. A. London headquarters when two officials called recently to offer notes on their trip of 6,400 miles from Lahore with an ordinary 23 h.p. car, several years old—overland throughout, except for a

A ROBOT CAR NOT WANTED.

But Most People Like Automatic Controls.
By Sir Malcolm Campbell

All the tendencies of motor-car design nowadays appear to be in the direction of making the motor-car more and more an automatic machine.

Hardly a week passes but I have shown to me some device or other the intention of which is to reduce the necessity for individuality and skill on the part of the driver and to invest the control of something in the car itself.

If we continue at the present rate I can foresee cars fitted with a journey control device which will require only setting to the desired destination. Then we shall simply recline in a comfortable seat and be carried without any human intervention where we want to go!

Gadgets that Do Nearly Everything.

Yes! that is a little far-fetched, but, really, one does begin to wonder where all the striving for automatic car control will lead us. We have gear-boxes that automatically change speeds for us; fluidly-wheels that make the intervention of the conventional clutch needless; automatic ignition control we have had with us for years; automatic mixture control—again a feature which is years old but has now become the rule rather than the exception; automatic control of the shock-absorbers, or as nearly automatic as possible, since by turning a button you can, while driving, adjust the shock-absorbers to suit the load and road surface.

Indeed, you may now own a car in which everything is done for you except the handling and steering. I prefer to do my own driving.

I often hear old stagers speak slightly of the tendency to simplify control. Some declare that if a person is so unskilled that he cannot carry out the few simple operations of changing gear, and so on, which make up skilled driving, then he has no business to be driving a car.

For my own part, I am not particularly enamoured of driving the automatic car. I very much prefer to have something more to do in the matter of driving than merely to steer. There is, to the skilled and experienced driver, a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction in getting by nice adjustment and skillful handling the very best out of car and engine.

But Easier Control Means More Motorists.

But, apart from this, man is a curious paradox. Always striving after new discoveries, he is nevertheless at the bottom conservative to the last degree. Having acquired the knowledge, having made discoveries which mean progress and improvement, when it comes to applying them to his everyday life he is inclined to shiff and to say that what was good enough for his father and his grandfather ought to be good enough for him!

Of course, he does not carry this attitude to the logical end, else there would be no progress, but the feeling is undoubtedly there, and I am inclined to think that the motorist of long standing and experience—and I include myself in the indictment—is affected by it in his verdict on the new trend towards simplification of control.

Taking a larger view than my own preferences, I think this tendency is in the right direction. The motor-car has long ceased to be a vehicle for pleasure only. It has become for the million a means of convenient locomotion, and the moment we realise this we must agree that everything that assists towards simplification is good and must attract more and more people to the ownership of cars.

Most people are profoundly ignorant of engineering, and a very large proportion of the whole are not particularly interested in what makes the wheels go round. Their sole concern is that the wheels should go round and continue turning with the minimum of care and attention.

The more the car can be simplified and control rendered automatic, the more people will buy cars, to the manifest benefit of trade and industry.

Position of Pedals Should be Uniform.

Writing of control in general brings to mind a matter which I think requires attention at the hands of designers and car constructors. I mean the question of standardising the positions of the clutch, brake, and accelerator pedals.

At the moment every maker is a law to himself, and he places the accelerator pedal where it seems best to him—either between the two others or outside the brake pedal. I do not think it matters much which of the two positions it occupies, though I think there is something to be said for the outside position, but I am very strongly of the opinion that whatever position be decided upon there should be rigid standardisation.

A very large number of accidents are directly traceable to mistakes made by a driver unfamiliar with the accelerator position in the car he is driving. Only the other day a dreadful accident occurred when a driver stepped on the centrally placed accelerator in mistake for the brake. He had been used to the outside position of the throttle pedal.

Police Signals We Cannot Understand.

Having got on to the subject of standardisation, I am reminded of a direction in which I think it is high time the authorities made a move. I refer to the lack of uniformity in police signals.

The Ministry of Transport has laid down a simple code to be used by drivers, and it is now held to be at least a prima facie proof of default for drivers not to give these signals with reasonable correctness. This code has the merit of being uniform over the whole country, and is understood from Land's End to John O' Groat's.

That cannot be said of the signals used by the traffic police. I would defy the Londoner to understand what is wanted of him in, let us say, Manchester.

In London when the controlling policeman drops the hand that has been against you you may proceed. Pass the Manchester policeman until he has waved you forward, and you do so at your peril.

Edinburgh, again, seems to have its own particular code. Colchester is another case in point, where the stranger is completely at sea in the interpretation of police signals.

There are some places I know—to name them might be asking for trouble when next I visit them—with a code of signals which I am certain has been evolved by a teacher of classical dancing. It is not fair to expect the traveller who is in the place for the first time to understand what the antics mean.

It would be simple for the Chief Constables' conference to agree to a single system of traffic signals for general use.

A Device That Should Save Lives

A large number of accidents happen through the thoughtless habit of people stepping off the pavement to attract the attention of omnibus and tramcar drivers at optional stopping places. Now I have had my attention drawn to a new signalling device, for affixing to lamp or tramway standards, which, if generally adopted, would, I think, go far to eliminate the danger arising from this cause.

The device is a battery operated lamp, with a time control, which shows a light indicating to the driver that he is required to stop. It is worked by a push-button, to be pressed by the intending passenger, and the lamp remains alight long enough to convey its warning message.

I understand it is to be adopted by the Manchester Corporation, which would indicate that it has been found efficient after trial.

British Manufacturers Still Keep Ahead.

All roads seem to lead to Geneva nowadays! I read that there has been held there a committee meeting of motor experts which has reported to the Economic Commission on motor trade conditions throughout the world.

From this report it appears that the world production of motor-cars fell in 1930 by 33 per cent, in comparison with the 1929 output, while there was a further drop during last year of 25 per cent.

The output of British factories fell in 1930 by only 1 per cent, and in 1931 by only 4.3 per cent. These figures are a remarkable tribute to the British manufacturer and his product.

Where the Motorist Must Know His Law.

Manchester seems to be trying to gain unenviable notoriety for its vexatious prosecution of the motorist. There has been a crop recently of prosecutions for driving at night with the rear blind down, thus obscuring the view in the interior mirror—a very doubtful offence, to say the least.

The purpose of the mirror is to inform the driver of the presence of another car wishing to pass. I cannot remember having driven in any closed car with a rear blind so nearly opaque that, with it down, it was not clearly apparent when another car was over-taking. However, they seem in Manchester to insist upon the most literal compliance with the regulation.

The same city was recently the scene of the prosecution of a motor-cyclist for having no rear chain guard on his machine. After a lengthy hearing the summons was

MOTORING AND MOTORS.

On Judging Cars.

A CRITIC'S VIEWS.
(By John Prioleau.)

Among the most interesting items of my weekly mail are those requests from Observer readers overseas who ask me for advice on the choice of British cars suitable for the most widely differing sorts of country. Their questions are invariably based on such experience and knowledge as are comparatively rarely found among the stay-at-home motorists, the owners of cars which are specifically designed for the easy road conditions of Great Britain and most of the countries west of Hungary. Lately I have had letters from Hongkong, Rhodesia, Western Australia, Southern India, and, an agreeable surprise, from British Columbia, where one would have expected the American machine to reign supreme. In every case the writers have displayed an appreciation of the special qualities of the British car, which is a decidedly hopeful sign of better days in store for our struggling export trade.

The Teaching of the Wild.

Separated in many cases from anything in the form of "service" by distances which render it practically non-existent, these owners have learnt things about motor-cars in general, what they should or should not do in given circumstances, which I have little doubt more than one manufacturer would be glad to have filed in his drawing-office, however successful his products may be in the hands of the man who drives from one year's end to the other on tarred and cemented tracks.

A reader in China, commenting on a report I wrote some eighteen months ago on the first model of a new well-found car, complains of our being spoilt at home. We have so wide a choice of cars at various prices that, in his own words, we "let them off much too lightly." He bought the car I described, and he seems to be satisfied with it, but he says he would like to have had the job of reporting on it, instead of me. I am sure he would have done it admirably.

Prices and Criticism.

It is not true, however, to say that it is only when a car impresses the enthusiastic driver with its excellence that he begins to be really critical, but, so far as my own experience goes, I certainly find that, as prices rise, I subconsciously begin to apply a higher standard of criticism. What you permit in a £200 economy car you damn unmercifully in a £2,000 one. I can forgive mediocrity, so long as it works, in a car on which the profit to the dealer is worked out in five-pound notes, but there can be no excuse for it when the selling price is ten times higher.

Although these discrepancies are less frequent now than a few years ago, there are still a number of crimes of stupidity committed by manufacturers of all nationalities which nothing can explain. They are just things we put up with, prices that, in his own words, we like the weather, for instance. Here are a few of which my China correspondent reminds me.

Crimes of Stupidity.

In no car of which he has read the specification is there any means of altering the length of the steering-column. Drivers, tall or short, long or short-legged, must adjust themselves to a column-length which, incidentally, is seldom the same in any two cars. As a matter of fact I know of two which have this most important feature, but that is all. Engines, as a whole, are accessibly arranged, but in the cheaper types tools, and particularly tyre-tools, are often accommodated as an afterthought. I only know of one car (and that a cheap one) in which the battery, the most delicate and temperamental part of the plant, is properly positioned. In several high-class cars I have tried during the past year the gear-lever placing has been unnecessarily awkward. If in one cheap car I know the lever, in all positions, is within comfortable reach, why should it not be in all others, whatever the price? The same thing applies to brake-levers.

Why cannot every car have easily accessible brake-adjusting mechanism? How many cars give proper access to the working side of the switch-board, with its numerous terminals, all subject to the loosening effect of vibration? I have seen one or two new models on which the instrument board is hinged so that these things can be attended to without the need for painful contortion on the part of the owner, but no more. Above all, why the insane practice of having a detached starting-handle? Apart from the fact that it is, or should be, used in cold weather (so long as our batteries are what they are), what better or tidier place can be found for it than in its working position? It cannot be lost, and it is not in the way. Anywhere else it is the worst sort of encumbrance.

And Real Improvements.

Against this array of complaints there are very real improvements in the new cars, improvements which, though we do not always remember the fact, have absolutely transformed motoring. It is rarely that you come across a car with a bad clutch or inefficient brakes. Cooling, whether by pump or thermosiphon, is usually on the generous side; suspension, with or without shock-absorbers, is immensely superior to what we endured five years ago; steering is light and steady instead of heavy and wandering; carburetors, particularly the latest types, are much more efficient; and, finally, tyres have fallen to the lowest place in the list of our sources of anxiety. It is not so long since they headed it.—Ex.

A writer in "Good Roads" states that in other walks of life ignorance cannot be offered as an excuse, but in road repairing, apparently, it forms a complete safeguard—and at the public expense.

There were 8,325 miles of high-ways in the Philippine Islands at the end of 1931 and 37,667 motor vehicles registered.

LONGER LIFE IN PROSPECT

TREND OF MEDICAL RESEARCH

ENDOCRINE GLAND MYSTERIES

"No man can say how far medical research now in progress may lead. The lengthening of life, certainly the lengthening of vitality, and the control of growth and fertility are all involved."

Such was the comment made recently by Dr. Alfred Cox, Medical Secretary of the British Medical Association. Dr. Cox gave a general outline of the progress and present position of modern medicine.

"Prominent in contemporary research," said Dr. Cox, "must be placed the work on the endocrine glands, which control, in a manner which is being increasingly understood, many of the principal activities of the body. Great discoveries have been made already, and it has been shown possible to transform cretins (a type of idiot) into normal individuals by gland treatment."

"All this is closely linked with the problem of growth, of which the problem of cancer is being increasingly regarded as a part. This means that scientists without medical qualifications are being increasingly called in to study the wider and fundamental questions from their own angles."

From Any Source

"Never has there been so much research into medical or quasi-medical subjects," Dr. Cox continued, "and it is more true to-day than ever before that the profession welcomes knowledge from any source."

"Much of the new knowledge concerning vitamins has come from men without medical training, working in adjoining fields, and it must never be forgotten that the manifold uses of radium come from the chemical researches of M. and Mme. Curie."

"Amid all this activity there is a great danger that the practitioner may lose sight of the wood for the trees. What is wanted is men who can synthesise laboratory work and look at the thing as a whole."

"In my opinion many of the finest doctors of to-day are country practitioners who have skill of fingers, ears and eyes, to diagnose and cure sickness even if they are unable to give an exact scientific description to what they are doing."

"We want to get out of the region of specialised detail to general principles which can be used by the ordinary practitioner, just as Lister's discovery of antiseptics and the work of Pasteur are used daily by every doctor in the land."

"Outside the profession modern scientific discoveries, and particularly electrical discoveries, have produced an increase in the number of unqualified practitioners and a change in the type of treatment offered."

Fashionable Treatments

"All sorts of so-called radio-active substances and rays have become fashionable. Concerning the former, it cannot be too strongly emphasised that if they are strong enough to be effective they are also strong enough to be dangerous."

"The second new type of unqualified practitioner is the inspired healer, by whom medical knowledge is regarded not only as immaterial, but as a hindrance."

"The view of the Association on such matters is that it is the public's funeral and expense. The public want unqualified men, and it will get them. In fact, many of the most highly paid practitioners in London are unqualified."

"The view we take is that the majority of people who benefit in this way are neurotics who would in any case be always changing their medical advisers, and would be a nuisance to the profession. The other large class, those who have been abandoned as incurable, no one can blame for trying any treatment which is offered them."

"No legislative cure could be effective, and we do not believe that in the long run the medical profession is losing anything."

THE "TEMPEST"

£75,000 MASTERPIECE BOUGHT BY ITALY

Rome, July 20.
The famous "Tempest" of Giorgione, belonging to the collection of Prince Giovanni, has been acquired by the Italian State. The sum paid was £75,000.

Since 1927 there have been rumours of foreign offers ranging from £300,000 to £700,000 having been made for the picture, which was shown at the Italian art exhibition in London.

For some time it has been known that Prince Giovanni desired to sell the picture. The Italian Government does not allow national masterpieces to pass out of the country, and the sale of the picture abroad was therefore out of the question.

After months of negotiation the sale has been completed to the State.

CURIOUS WAYS OF OIL

WHAT PHOTOGRAPHS REVEALED

The lubricating value of oils for all engineering purposes may be estimated in future by a method which reveals particles as far beyond the microscope as microscopic particles are beyond ordinary vision.

These particles are the molecules, the smallest constituents of all chemical substances, which can be photographed by the recently developed method of bombardment by a stream of rapidly moving electrons.

Professor G. I. Finch, of the Imperial College of Science and Technology, South Kensington, has obtained photographs which show as clearly as possible that some molecules lie down flat on a surface while others stand upright.

In the case of a thin film of vasoline, the molecules lie down and so afford the maximum protection from the air. Those of castor oil, however, which is a good lubricant, stand upright, and as one surface passes over another have a considerable range in which they can be lightly brushed to one side.

"It is possible," Professor Finch stated to a representative of the Morning Post, "that the method may afford the easiest and cheapest way of telling whether any given sample of oil will be satisfactory for lubrication. At present this is a matter for prolonged practical tests, which in the end are not always reliable."

"By taking observations at different temperatures it will also be possible to see at what point oils are likely to cease to be effective. I have a suspicion, for example, that the molecules of castor oil lie down with more or less suddenness above a certain temperature."

A WONDER BOAT FOR GAR WOOD

REPLY OF AMERICA TO MISS ENGLAND III

Detroit, Aug. 28.
Commodore Gar Wood's Harmsworth Trophy defender this year will have the biggest power plant ever built into a speed-boat, consisting of four twelve-cylinder motors developing a total of 6,400 horse power. In disclosing this to-day, Wood also announced that he would race only one boat against Kaye Don, the British challenger in this year's race on Lake St. Clair.

The potential power of the new defender, Miss America X, will be more than twice that of Miss America IX, with which Wood last winter set a new world record of 111.712 miles an hour. To obtain it, Wood has taken two motors each out of the old Miss America VIII and Miss America IX, rebuilt them and installed new superchargers. "Without the superchargers," Wood said, "each of these motors has a normal horsepower of 1,600, but with the 'blowers' we have already obtained 1,600 horse-power from each and we hope to get 1,700, or a total of 6,800 horse-power."

The American speed king declined to predict the speed of the new boat. He said he was satisfied, however, that it would be considerably faster than Miss America IX. The craft is 38 ft. long and 10 ft. 6 in. beam. The motors are installed in tandem, a gear-box between them, each pair supplying power to a port and a starboard propeller.

The new Harmsworth course, with two three-mile straightaways, is considered by the regatta committee to be ideal for the attainment of high speed. The course has been laid out at the lower end of Lake St. Clair. From starting to finishing line it measures seven nautical miles, and the contesting craft will roar over it five times in each heat.

Regatta officials say that the race probably will be won and lost in the first two miles, the distance from the starting point to the first turn. The prediction is based on the assumption that the contenders will be closely matched in potential speed and that, once around the first turn and into a three-mile straightaway, the leader hardly can be overtaken, barring accidents.

NOTABLE BRITISH VICTORY

Miss Palfrey & Perry Win U.S. Title

Chestnut Hills, N.Y., Aug. 27.
H. Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, nationally ranked No. 2 as a tennis doubles team, to-day won the American championship when they defeated the No. 1 team of Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, last year's champions. Vines, the American national and Wimbledon singles champion, and his partner arrived at to-day's final at the top of their game, taking a lesson from their 1931 experience, when, after winning the California State, clay court, Agawam, Longwood, Southampton, Rye, and Newport doubles, they found themselves "over-tennis" for the national struggle, going down in the third round for their second defeat of the year in 43 tournaments.

To-day, they had things all their own way, winning in straight sets by 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

An Anglo-American win was the feature of to-day's mixed doubles finals, in which Fred J. Perry, of Great Britain and Miss Sarah Palfrey, of America, claiming straight sets against Vines and Miss Helen Jacobs, of California, by 7-5, 6-3. The victory of the Briton and his partner was received with great applause and they gained special commendation for carrying the American men's champion and the woman ranked No. 2 in the United States to defeat and then winning the initial set, despite a severe struggle by the Americans, who were not able to put up as hard a fight there-after.

LEAGUE TENNIS

REICH ARMY IN VON PAPEN HANDS

NOTICE TO HITLER IN RADIO

Berlin, July 28.

The strong man of the present German ministry—Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, Minister of Defence, who is regarded as the dominant though not the titular head of the von Papen Cabinet—has made his debut as the Reich Cabinet radio speaker in a short broadcast from which long inferences are being drawn.

Germany, he declared, faces the necessity of "rebuilding the Reichswehr to provide for herself the security denied by the other nations," apparent inability to disarm. Although the statement is declared in some moderate circles an unfortunate interference in foreign affairs, Nationalistic quarters hold it as a logical step following Germany's unrequited demands for equality at Geneva.

General von Schleicher in his speech lamented "the catastrophic failure" in Geneva. Wilhelmstrasse to-day amplified this, indicating that no one in Germany desires to see increased armament, but desires equality through reduction. It was reiterated that Germany year by year has been delaying action to strengthen its military arm, expecting definite results from disarmament discussion. This, they declare, is not up to Germany, but in hands of the powers, which so far have hindered disarmament, to decide the course which Germany must follow.

The Minister of Defence made clear that his plan did not include sharing the authority of the national army with "private organizations." This can hardly be interpreted as less than a notice to the Hitlerites that General von Schleicher opposes the much discussed steps which would turn the Fascist Brown Shirts into a supplement to the national army.

He also surprised many who heard him over the nation-wide network when he declared he was not a friend either of martial law or military dictatorship.

NASH
STEPS OUT
AHEAD
WITH 5 NEW SERIES

*A Woman
views this new car*

By HELEN MARION BLAKE

I HAVE just seen the new Nash cars with the fascinating Slip-Stream body. I was very much interested to learn from the Nash representative that the delightful charm and grace of this new design has a very practical purpose. In fact, it actually increases motor car speed and comfort, too.

As soon as you see it and drive the car you realize how wonderful it is.

The V-Radiator and sloping windshield reduce the frontal wind-resistance and the Beverall back gliding the rear "vacuum back-drag" so you "slip" through the air instead of pushing through it—at least that's the way I would describe it.

And just as important—to me—is the fact that by reason of this design Nash has been able to place the rear seat in front of the rear axle—instead of over the axle as in ordinary cars. And what a great difference that makes in riding comfort for rear seat passengers! I know—because I tried it.

All models are longer and lower and the bodies are wider. Seats are wider, too, and seat backs are higher and there is a deep pile floor carpet—very rich. You'll like the new inside sun visors and the two chromium-trimmed glove compartments in the handsome new instrument panel.

Then there's the new roller-type front seat adjuster with finger-tip controls; rubber pedal pads and all doors lock from the inside. There is an instrument on the dash—a little lever—by which you can regulate your ride to your own idea of perfect comfort. It works like a charm whether you are alone or have the car filled, and makes the roughest road so smooth. As you ride there's complete quiet, for Nash has cleverly sound-proofed both bodies and chassis, and there are carburetors and exhaust silencers, too.

To tell you all about these beautiful new cars would require pages—so instead I urge that you go to your Nash dealer and drive the new Nash for yourself.

ILLEGAL POSSESSION OF ARMS.

TWO CHINESE COMMITTED TO THE SESSIONS

Prosecuting in a case of unlawful possession of arms at the Kowloon Magistracy before Mr. Fraser yesterday afternoon, Detective Sergeant Meadows applied for committal. Ng Nam was charged with being in unlawful possession of a revolver and five rounds of ammunition. He was followed by two Chinese detectives on the evening of August 27, and when searched in Temple Street, a revolver was found tied to his legs. Five of the six chambers were loaded when Sergeant Meadows examined the weapon at the Police Station, where the defendant was taken after his arrest.

Giving the details of the case to his Worship, Sergeant Meadows said the detectives were acting on information.

In a statement made to the Police, defendant said he brought the revolver from the country. A friend of his had written to him to say he wanted a revolver, but when he had brought it here his friend said he did not want it.

After evidence of arrest had been given his Worship committed defendant to the next Criminal Sessions for trial.

MANCHUKUO DEFENCE

TREATY SIGNED WITH JAPAN

Tokyo, Sept. 2.

It has been authoritatively learned that a Japan-Manchukuo Treaty, a defensive alliance has been signed and is to become effective before September 15.

It will include mutual respect of territorial sovereignty and gives Japan the right to station troops throughout Manchuria, while Japan will undertake both the internal and external defence of Manchukuo.—Reuter.

exercise the greatest care in the choice of baby's food. So much in later years depends on the foundation laid in infancy. With the mother lies a big responsibility, the welfare of the coming generation. The tropics especially call for a healthy constitution. For baby, therefore, the best only is good enough. This is the reason why you should give baby plenty of "BEAR BRAND" Milk. It does more than merely nourish, it builds up the whole system, it paves the way to perfect health and success in life. BEAR BRAND comes from the great Swiss Milk centre, the Emmenthal, it is very rich in nutritive elements, absolutely pure and an infant food par excellence. BEAR BRAND Milk goes to make healthy babies, happy children, successful men and women.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

REFUSAL TO ALLOW WITHDRAWAL

Subject to further investigation, Mr. Wynne-Jones, at the Central Police Court this morning, declined to allow the prosecution to withdraw a charge of embezzlement which was brought by the Sze Yap Steamship Co. against Tsui Wai-hing, a former employee, who was alleged to have converted to his own use $1,584 which had been collected from Messrs. Siemens Co., of Canton, between January and September, 1930.

Mr. Prentice, of Messrs. Hastings, Denny and Bowley, appeared for the complainants, and Mr. P. E. Nash represented the defendant.

Mr. Prentice said he was instructed that the money was paid to a subordinate of the defendant and under the circumstances the complainants wished to withdraw the charge.

His Worship, who has often strongly criticised the prosecution for withdrawing charges after warrants of arrest have been sworn, declined to dismiss the case without further investigation. He remarked that if Mr. Prentice had no further instructions in the matter, he should send all the documents to his Worship, and they would be impounded and sent to the Attorney General.

The case was adjourned to Tuesday.

"MATI HARI"

HIGH PRAISE FOR BIG FILM

This is what The British Cinema of May 4th says of "Mati Hari," the big film now showing at the Queen's Theatre:

"Mati Hari," which is released on September 26th, and which is at present creating a sensation at the Empire in London, brings to the screen one of the strongest casts ever assembled in one picture. Garbo as the notorious wartime spy, and Ramon Novarro as the young Russian officer with whom she falls in love, are co-starred in the romantic drama of the Secret Service while the supporting cast includes such well-

BURGLER VISITS GRACA &amp; CO.

GETS PRACTICALLY NOTHING

The stamp and seed emporium of Messrs. Graca & Co., at No. 10, Wyndham Street, was broken into by a burglar last night or early this morning.

Entry was obtained from a back-yard by the intruder removing a pane of glass from a window, this enabling him to wrench off a padlock by which the window was secured from the inside. He found himself in what in the normal course of events would have been the kitchen, but is used by Messrs. Graca & Co., as a storeroom. A closed door locked on the other side barred progress into the shop itself, and the intruder endeavoured to cut through the panels.

After some time spent at this task, but making no impression beyond a few scratches, he evidently gave up the attempt and turned his attention to the contents of the storeroom. Here he appears to have been grievously disappointed, and had to be content with a looking glass which he wrenched from its fastenings on the wall. A few other odds and ends of no considerable value were also taken.

From an outhouse in the back-yard, the burglar took away about half-a-dozen empty seed boxes. Of what possible value these could be is a mystery.

Mr. John R. Luke arrived from England this morning by the s.s. Fushimi Maru to join the staff of the Hongkong Telegraph and S. C. M. Post.

known players as Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone, Karen Morely, Alec. B. Francis, C. Henry Gordon and a host of other equally well-known players.

"It is probably the most successful picture in which Garbo has yet appeared. The figures for the first week-end at the Empire prove that this is no mis-statement, for on Saturday the film broke every record for the house, including that set up by 'Broadway Melody' and the week-end business bent by a wide margin that set up by 'Hell Divers,' 'Trader Horn,' 'Emma,' 'The Rise of Helga,' 'A Free Soul,' 'Private Lives,' 'Min and Bill,'"

AIR FACILITIES IN AFRICA

BIG DEVELOPMENT SCHEMES

London, Sept. 2.

An already reported, immediate effect is being given to the provisions of the Belt Trust, under which £30,000 is to be devoted to the improvement of air communication in Africa.

Over £10,000 has already been earmarked for immediate tasks in Northern and Southern Rhodesia along the route followed by the Imperial Airways in their flights with passengers, mails and freight over the Cairo-Capetown sections of the airmail which connects South Africa with England.

The immediate work includes the provision of new lighting grounds, enlargement and improvement of existing aerodromes, and careful attention is being paid to improving the facilities for wireless communication between aircraft and land stations, and also to the development of telephone services as between aerodromes and towns or cities.—British Wireless.

MOUNT EVEREST EXPEDITION

BRITISH PLANS FOR NEXT YEAR

London, Sept. 2.

Admiral Sir William Goodenough, President of the Royal Geographical Society, and Brigadier General Bruce, for the President of the Alpine Club, announce that a British expedition to Mount Everest will take place in 1933, the Dalai Lama's consent having been received through the Government of India.

The Mount Everest Committee will announce the plans in due course.

Brigadier General Bruce has informed Reuter that the personnel of the expedition has not yet been settled, but it will be definitely British. He will not himself accompany the expedition, which will start early in the New Year and make the ascent about May.—Reuter.
